

warrant when the time comes."

The other witnesses in the case were disposed of rapidly. Erbstein did not fight with any of them.

Erbstein (in closing address for prosecution): "Your Honor, I must call your attention to the nature of this defendant Jaw-awn Artha-a-a Johnsing.

"He is a yello weur, one of the mongrels that slinks along the streets in the dead of night, seeing what garbage he can find to fill his voracious belly.

"He is a man without any respect for the courts. He thinks that every time he is arrested it is so much more advertising for himself and his disgusting business. He has boasted that he has too much money to be convicted in any American court.

"I call your attention to his associates, who also are his witnesses—to Levy the miserable, who is a man black in everything but his complexion; a man who sleeps with this negro.

"I call your attention to Hart, a man whom Johnson with his money raised from the bum class.

"I call your attention to Roth, a bench-warmer who came into this court and swore falsely for this yellow cur in regard to an occurrence he could not possibly have seen, a man who allowed himself to be bribed by this yellow bruiser."

This was only Erbstein's beginning. From this point he worked up to a climax wherein he called Johnson every name he could lay his tongue.

"As for Hart and Levy," he said at one time, "they are scarcely worth talking about. So far as I can make out, they appear to be Bearers of the Royal Cash and Royal Pink Socks."

At the end of the battle Johnson was knocked down for the count with a $50 fine, as Judge Goodenow raised Kid Edbstein's hand.

CALLS IT THE WEDLOCK OF BLACK SLAVERY

Washington, Dec. 12.—Rep. Roddenberry, of Georgia, yesterday demanded a constitutional amendment prohibiting the marriage of whites and negroes, from the floor of the House.

"We have heard much of slavery in the South," he shouted. "But in all the years of Southern slavery there never was such brutality, such infamy as the marriage license authorizing that black African brute, Jack Johnson, to wed a white woman and to bind her in the wedlock of black slavery.

"I denounce that marriage, and I denounce the authorities of Chicago for permitting it."

Alfred R. Goldman, 2137 Garfield blvd., has filed a suit against Mr. and Mrs. Simon Antler, his father-in-law and mother-in-law. Wants $50,000 damages. Claims they deprived him of companionship of his wife.
